Quote from: LongTermCrypto on June 26, 2017, 12:26:21 AM*This is the difference between XRP and Ripple.

by ecurrencyhodler @

https://www.reddit.com/r/Ripple/comments/6jd9w6/this_is_the_difference_between_xrp_and_ripple/

Here is the difference between xrp and ripple taken from their whitepapers:

1) Ripple, the company, offers banks a software called Ripple Connect (thanks /u/cmbartley) which uses InterLedger Protocol (ILP) to transfer $$ between banks with a minimal fee because it doesn't have to get transferred 2-3 times into different fiats or service fees. It simply needs to get converted once. This software DOES NOT USE XRP.

2) XRP is simply a cryptocurrency that exists outside of this software that is high in liquidity and has fast transactions. There is nothing that distinguishes XRP from other cryptocurrencies that carry the same properties such as LTC or Zcash. Source: https://youtu.be/51dMe_Oui4M?t=2439

For you newcomers out there looking to invest in this coin, you need to know the following things:

- 1) The success of Ripple the company is not directly tied to the value of XRP.
- 2) When you buy Ripple, you are simply buying another cryptocurrency. It's advantages are its fast transaction times, high liquidity, and finally the various exchanges it's on.
- 3) You are NOT buying the currency that banks are currently using to transfer their money. So banks are not buying XRP right now and you should not expect banks to buy up a whole ton of XRP in the near future.

4) However, Ripple the company will advocate for use of XRP as the cryptocurrency of choice within Ripple connect for banks to transfer money in the ILP between lesser known fiats outside of the USD and the Euro.

So Ripple, the company, encourages using XRP, right? Then if this company is having success and many famous banks want to work with it, XRP, the coin should be successful too.

IMO it would be right to say that XRP and Ripple are different things only if there was no connection at all between the two.

There are several different types of Bitcoin clients. The most secure are full nodes like Bitcoin Core, but full nodes are more resource-heavy, and they must do a lengthy initial syncing process. As a result, lightweight clients with somewhat less security are commonly used.

At current stage, all top 10 coins get Down by 15-25%, but only two stands at 7.5% drop XRP and BTC (I would love to remove it, but lets respect contenders), and XRP on 0.1 has less drop than BTC 😊 Do you need stronger signs, of significant support?

Yes, but when XRP went down 30% others (BTC, ETH) went up 30% so... it is still underperformer.

But when XRP went up 30% others went down, so others still pretend to be performant!

Think about it this way:

Ripple holds over 60 billion XRP. Given the way that's being escrowed, Ripple will almost certainly be the largest holder of XRP for the foreseeable future. For every penny the price of XRP goes up, the notional value of Ripple's XRP goes up by six hundred million dollars. Ripple can only materialize that value for its shareholders if that value and liquidity are preserved over the next several years.

Sure, Ripple makes money by selling software to banks. But how many banks do you think Ripple would have to close to make six hundred million dollars in license/support fees? That would equal the value of a sustained one cent increase in the price of XRP.

Its time for Ripple to think to become a ever first crypto bank, with low cost, super fast transactions and no nostro in between. Branches/ATM in all around the world, to buy Fiat/Crypto using XRP!

that's a good alternatives for those who's experiencing issue with this 2 coins or some other coins and xrp really become useful as long as the traders and investors understand this the value will rise up again while btc will also try to survive.

It depends what you mean by "the tech".

XRP and ILP are open. Anyone can use them however they want.

Ripple also sells software to banks that integrates things like XRP and ILP with banking systems. This handles the parts of the transaction that XRP and ILP don't handle, primarily end-to-end pre-payment messaging and integration with banking systems and processes.

If we had to give it away for free to drive adoption, we probably would have. But charging for it also ensures that we're only working with partners who have a level of commitment.

I think that could be the plan... or more accurately a liquidity provider.

Soooo,

If investing XRP is like pissing in the ocean, then exactly how do we go about putting the money into actual Ripple, before Ripple blows up and goes international? I don't know exactly what or why that exact question regarding investing in Ripple & XRP were possibly 2 separate investments. Ripple being the investment which goes to the moon, & all the investors get rich off of, and XRP being the investment we just get to watch? XRP should be xrp, or it's the digital form of Silver, you want to buy a ton of silver because all the signals show that the price for Silver is boiling over and about to blow wide open yesterday. But, like always has and always will, silver stays right there and you watch it do nothing.....

i dont think you can invest in Ripple (yet)

i dont think you can invest in swift,western union , can you?

key dif is, Ripple created a digital asset, faster and cheaper than other currencies, the others have not.

if and when the others do try to, they need to go through the whole process prototype,roadmap,beta,beta2,alpha and then adoption...this takes a few yrs & Ripple has many patents so it might not be so easy for competitors also i hear a gd rumour...one thats probably true lol....

something about (possibly the XRP Ripple hold)

XRP being backed by precious metals, silver & copper (if true and officially announced...omg) man, i am probably a noob but all i can see is XRP is following the BTC dump and blood everywhere on crypto...

i love XRP..lol
esp @ times like these..let me explain

Activity: 2296
Merit: 1075

lots of coins on sale at dif exchanges...and lots of quick up and downs and i dont wanna miss some bargains..
i want zcl which is only on trex just now and i want nmc which is only on polo (or btce..if they listed XRP, id be sending my funds to them..so BTCE,cmom hurry up and list XRP 😊)
but i have no funds on trex or polo at moment...so what can i do?? times running out...i needa buy asap lol so...

i have a couple of btc on kraken...i quickly sold them for XRP

i then send half of the XRP to polo and rest to trex..it gets there in under 1minute and costs almost nothing 😊 i sold the XRP on both exchanges for btc, then grabbed the coins i wanted...
all done in under 5mins 😊

I love XRP 😊
